Course Overview

Our introduction to the Program in Community Action (PICA) Certificate program explores the foundations of community action. We examine the relationship between identity, agency, communities, institutions, policies, and movements. You have a hands-on community-based learning experience, acquire active citizenship skills, and contribute to advancing the New London community. You work with the instructors and divide into groups with each group focusing on a specific community project. Under the guidance of a community partner supervisor and the course instructors, you spend approximately two to four hours per week working on a community project. Projects may require additional time each week to coordinate efforts and make progress towards the completion of the group's terms of reference (see separate "Terms of Reference" handouts).

Learning Goals

We explore the following questions throughout our course:

- How is inequality and injustice produced, perpetuated and maintained systemically?
- How can public policy and/or community engagement exacerbate and/or reduce inequality?
- How do values of ethics, respect, dignity, and service challenge our community practices?
- How can community engagement and/or policymaking be sustained, meaningful, and impactful?

We seek to:

- Develop and use critical discourses related to policy, community, and society;
- Understand the socio-historical and economic context for U.S. public policy;
- Engage in the dialectical relationship between theory and practice (praxis);
- Define and differentiate between different modes of community engagement and policy advocacy;
- Become more intentionally and actively engaged on campus and in your communities; and
- Recognize and respond to our own biases or prejudices as they impact our learning and interactions.

Universal Learning

We are committed to the principle of universal learning. All of us learn in different ways and our course can be organized to accommodate all students. For example, you may learn more effectively through oral, written, or visual renderings of course topics. Our classroom, virtual spaces, learning and communication practices should be as inclusive as possible. Please meet with us as soon as possible to discuss your individual learning needs and how they can be accommodated in this course. If you do not have a documented disability, please remember that other support services, including the Academic Resource Center, Writing Center, and Counseling Services are available to all students and offer a range of services that are helpful for everyone.

Course Technology Policy

As laptop usage during classroom engagement often distract students, you will use a notebook in class and bring printed versions of the day's readings with you. As appropriate for specific class exercises, we will use technology and you will regularly bring a charged laptop or tablet to class. Any use of phones is not allowed.

Office Hours

We hold office hours in order to provide you with an opportunity to discuss course-specific issues that we have not been able to address in class. Examples of reasons that you may visit our office hours include: you want to discuss a course topic further; you have questions or concerns about your work in this course; or a personal issue has begun affecting your work and you need to talk with us about possible ways to address this problem. Do not hesitate to meet with us as soon as possible if you are having difficulties with the course, because there is little we can do at the end of the semester.

Grading

You receive your final grade based on your performance in class and course work. The grading scale for this course is: A = 100-93; A- = 92-90; B+ = 89-87; B = 86-83; B- = 82-80; C+ = 79-77; C = 76-73; C- = 72-70; D = 69-60; F= 59 and below. Late assignments will receive a deduction of one letter grade per 24-hour period they are late. Assignment extensions may be requested with timely notification. This course does not have extra credit work. Please note that while the course is listed as two separate courses in the catalog, you receive the same grade for CA 201 (4 credits) and CA 201a (2 credits).

This course is reading intensive. A foundational expectation is that you schedule enough time to read, take notes, and reflect upon our reading each day in advance of class.

Course Participation and Preparation

Participation and preparation are critical to your successful work in both seminars and your community placement. Participation includes engagement in and outside of the classroom including your community placement work, class discussions, group work, and online communication. Consistent, critically engaged participation is crucial for a successful and productive course. Class discussions are in relationship with the course readings and themes, and you must come to class having completed all assigned reading. As a member of this course, you respectfully engage all members of the classroom and talk only in your turn. Interruptions and hostile remarks will not be tolerated. Use of electronic devices in class is solely for work related to our course.

Day 1 Class Brainstorm around Participation and Ground Rules

- Small groups are helpful, gaining confidence for seminar discussion
- Challenge ideas, not the person

- Active engagement with classmates - ask questions
- Advance questions are helpful for readings - also ask questions of yourself in relation to reading
- Step out of your comfort zone
- Make connections to other coursework and share

Please add other suggestions that would be helpful!

Homeless Hospitality Group Guideline:

1. Communicate with group
2. If possible, go to the center with someone else
3. Create a group chat to check in
4. Set up meeting times to plan events
5. Be aware of the language being used at the center, ask questions, and apologize for saying something that could be offensive

Reading Discussion Questions and Comments

Your preparation is buttressed by your daily reading discussion question and comment that are submitted via our course Google Form (<https://goo.gl/forms/HIL27yNA3RIEJKpE2>) in advance of our class meeting (preferably by 9:00 am) the day that class meets. Please ensure that you select “Send me a copy of my responses.” Your discussion questions and comments must engage all of the day’s readings. Your questions identify points in the readings that you would like clarified or analyzed further. Your comments present overarching themes from the readings and your own response to these ideas.

Attendance

You are required to come to class on time. Lateness and unexcused absences will count negatively towards your grade. Attendance is mandatory on class presentation days and for required outside class events. You provide proper documentation for unavoidable absences in order for them to not negatively impact your final grade.

Reflection Journal

Reflection on practice combined with the integration of theory and policy analysis in reflection is a foundational activity of community engagement and the pedagogical practice known as community-learning. At the end of each month, we will collect your journals to confirm your active, thoughtful completion of this component. The expectation is that as the weeks progress so too will your integration of readings, policy, and theory into your reflection papers. We will not be responding to the content of your journal, as this assignment is to support your own reflective work. You are encouraged to draw upon your work in this journal to support your course engagement.

Praxis Assignments

Over the semester, you will complete assignments that synthesize your academic and experiential learning. Each assignment’s instructions will be available in our Google Drive folder. Praxis 1 will explore your community learning site and topic, Praxis 2 will delve into your policy area of interest, and Praxis 3 will focus your community learning group’s preparation for the end of semester presentation.

Presentation

The final presentation represents the culmination of the semester’s coursework. In groups you educate audience members about the policy topic or issue you worked on and communicate what you accomplished in your community learning projects over the course of the semester. This presentation takes place on May 8 during class time. This is a formal presentation. Audience members may include: community partners, faculty, staff, Holleran Center scholars, and other students. The event is open to the public and will be publicized on campus.

Reflection Exam

This take home exam is completed within three hours total (you may schedule your work as appropriate) during the finals period. You receive the essay prompt at the start of the finals period. You will write a short essay response. The exam will be open note and journal, and closed book/readings/online resources.

All formal written work is submitted through your Google Drive student folder. Further information about each component is provided during the semester.

The Connecticut College Honor Code

Academic integrity is of the utmost importance in maintaining the high standards of scholarship in our community. Academic dishonesty is considered to be a serious offense against the community and represents a significant breach of trust between the professor, the classmates, and the student. There are many forms of academic dishonesty including plagiarism, submitting the same work in two courses without prior approval, unauthorized discussion or distribution of exams or assignments, and offering or receiving unauthorized aid on exams or graded assignments. Students violating the Honor Code may be referred to the college's Honor Council for resolution. It is your responsibility to ask for assistance if you need clarification or support with any academic concerns, such as how to properly cite sources or prepare for course assignments.

Title IX Statement

As faculty and staff members, we are deeply invested in the well-being of each student we teach. We are here to assist you with your work in this course. If you come to us with other non-course-related concerns, we will do our best to help.

It is important for you to know that all faculty and most staff members are trained and required to report any incidents of gender-based discrimination, including discrimination based on gender identity, gender expression, and sexual orientation. This means that we cannot keep information confidential about sexual misconduct, intimate partner violence, stalking, or other forms of gender-based discrimination. Darcie Folsom, the Director of Sexual Violence Prevention and Advocacy, can advise you confidentially as can Counseling Services and any of the College chaplains. Darcie can also help you access other resources on campus and in the local community. You can reach Darcie at 860-439-2219 or darcie.folsom@conncoll.edu, and her office is in Cro 222.

The student sexual misconduct, intimate partner violence, stalking, and non-discrimination policies are in the Student Handbook, which can be found on Camelweb, in the "Documents/Policies" section, under the Student Life section. There you will find the policies, definitions, procedures and resources. If you have any questions about the policy, you can contact Melissa Pierce, the Title IX Coordinator. You can reach Melissa at 860-439-2597 or melissa.pierce@conncoll.edu; her office is in Fanning 104.

Writing Center tutors are trained to help you to discover what you think through writing. Working with a tutor gives you the opportunity to share your work-in-progress with an actual reader, so that you can get useful feedback on that work before you have to turn it in for a final grade.
